

PENNSYLVANIA HAS THE IDEAL TRAIN

New Pullman Cars Superbly Appointed.

SIMPLICITY AND BEAUTY

Eighteen-Hour Flyer Between New York and Chicago Provided With Same Luxurious Cars.

Beginning with the westward trip on August 20, the Pennsylvania Special, the famous eighteen-hour flyer between New York and Chicago, will be equipped with the superbly appointed new cars which the Pullman Company has just turned out for this service.

This new equipment, representing the highest type of modern car construction, will render the service performed by the Pennsylvania special not only speedy, but exceedingly luxurious.

The new cars combine a number of features not heretofore seen in Pullman cars. While there has been but little change in outward appearance, the fitting up of the interiors shows several radical departures from the style of car now in use on the "special." Several of these new features appeal directly to the comfort of the passenger, while others add to the attractiveness of the train as a perfect specimen of modern car construction.

Painted Red.

The new cars are painted the standard red color adopted long since as the mark of Pennsylvania railroad equipment. The iron railing surrounding the wide observation platform in the rear of the train is constructed of plainly turned brass rods, instead of the grided railing now in use.

In fact, simplicity is the motif of the entire decoration of the train. The elaborately carved berth fronts and interior fittings of the composite and observation cars have given away to the use of highly polished woods treated in inlay work with elaborate but artistic designs. There are no corners in the sleeping cars to catch dust, and the general impression of the car is one of great cleanliness.

Each of the new sleepers is finished in vermilion wood, which is susceptible of a high polish. A delicate tracery of inlay work is the sole ornament to the beautiful graining of the wood, which shines like a mirror's face. So far as was possible this severe and simple scheme has been carried out, with pleasing effect.

Other Improvements.

The lavatories and special bathrooms of these new trains have also been modernized. Instead of the old dark wooden-lined lavatories, one steps into a room lined—ceiling, floor, and walls—with a pure white tile of hard rubber. The very finest plumbing accessories have also been installed.

The stateroom and the compartments in the observation cars have each separate and distinct toilet appliances. Another new feature is the introduction of a gas water heater, so that passengers may have a full and ample supply of hot water summer and winter.

In the composite car great care has been taken to render it just as attractive as the observation car. The broad windows, so appreciated a feature of this car as at present in use, have been retained, and wherever possible elaborate wood carving and the use of heavy drapery has been avoided.

The space occupied by the barber shop and bathroom is divided from the rest of the car by simply constructed columns with but a slight carving at the top.

One change in the construction of the sleeping car will meet with much favor. This is the elimination of the deep boxes in which the pillows were stored away under the seats.

In the new cars this space is entirely clear, allowing space for passengers to stow away baggage under the seats and also aiding in the better distribution of heat in winter and air in summer. The ventilation and heating appliances on these cars have also been much improved.

BLAMES WOMEN FOR WORLD'S BARBARITY

Chicago University Professor Offers Himself as a Living Example of the Theory.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Is woman responsible for what barbarity there is in the world?

Prof. Frederick Starr, of the University of Chicago, says she is, and he offers himself and his own ways in evidence to prove the accusation.

Professor Starr, in a lecture before his class in anthropology, put himself on record as believing that in those races in which children are brought up wholly under the direction of the mother there is more barbarity than in those races where the young are reared under the guiding influence of the father.

"I was brought up by my mother," he said, "but if I had been brought up by my father instead I would not have been so barbarous."

This statement was regarded by some of the seniors as a sort of an apology for the professor's own eccentricities. Professor Starr lives entirely alone, except for the company of a Mexican boy, and whenever the vacation period arrives he hastens away to the study of some uncivilized race.

GLADDEN AND ROCKEFELLER. It is not generally known that Dr. Washington Gladden—who has so vigorously scored the church for its acceptance of "tainted" money—and John D. Rockefeller were country boys together in Toga county, New York, attended adjoining district schools and frequently met in rival spelling bees.

Young Ones Celebrated as Handsomest Royal Children in Any Country. Guests at Court.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Crown Princess of Roumania has for some time been visiting King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

She has often been in this city before, but this time she brought along her children, who are known all over Europe as the best looking children of royal blood in any country.

The third is a recent picture taken in this city of Princess Marie and Prince Nicholas.

FORMERLY WEALTHY, AGED MAN GOES TO ALMSHOUSE

Had Fortune of $500,000—Calculated He Could Use Principal and Make It Last, But He Lived Too Long.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Wearing patent leather shoes, a slightly frayed frock coat and a high hat a bit rusty, and with seven cents in his pocket, the remains of a fortune of $500,000, J. T. Raplee, a retired broker, eighty-two years of age, has applied to the commissioner of charities in New Rochelle for commitment to the almshouse.

"Struck by the aged man's unusual dignity and refinement, the commissioner said:

"You really don't mean that you want to go to the poorhouse?"

For Self-Respect.

"Yes, sir, I most emphatically do," was the reply. "I want to keep my self-respect and do not wish to be dependent on relatives or friends. As I have paid taxes all my life, I think now, when I have no more money, it is the duty of the community to care for me."

Asked how he had come to lose his money, Raplee said he formerly had been at the head of a brokerage house in this city, made a comfortable fortune and retired. For a time he lived at the best hotels, but gradually encroached on his capital and slowly receded to cheaper quarters.

The income from his funds was insufficient even then, and during the past fifteen years his capital slowly dwindled, until yesterday only seven cents remained.

Lived Too Long.

When he figured years ago on always being in good circumstances, Raplee says he never dreamed he would pass the four-score mark, so that his calculations went far amiss.

For two months he has been living in a boarding house in New Rochelle, but yesterday he was told he would have to move, as he was a week behind in his rent.

Commissioner Scharp said he would commit the old man to the almshouse temporarily, at least.

VEILED WOMAN VISITS MORGUE, HUNTING HUSBAND

Comes Every Day, Asking, "Is He Here?"—Has Made Inquiry for Years—Inspects Dead Faces on the Slabs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—No day ever passes at the Hamilton county morgue but a mysterious woman of middle age, heavily veiled, who has never disclosed her name, comes to ask if the body of her husband, who disappeared five years ago, has been found and brought to the deadhouse.

She usually makes her visits in the day time, but if she fails during daylight, she is sure to appear at night.

She has been coming for so long a time that the visits are taken as a matter of course by the keepers.

It is no longer necessary for her to say more than a few words of greeting and briefly ask:

"Is he here?"

If there are any bodies at the morgue she passes around the slabs to view the upturned, lifeless faces, and always up to the present she has shaken her head sadly and left, only to return the following day.

"It may be that she is only morbid, like many others who come here frequently," said Night Morgue Keeper Schachenberg to a reporter last night. "By coming as regularly as she does she must never miss a look at every body that is brought here."

"But I don't think it is morbid curiosity, for she has been coming too long and too regularly. Her husband may be buried in a potter's field somewhere, or living hundreds of miles away. Or some day she may not return and we will know that they are once more together, here or in the great beyond."

"Who knows?"

Thomas Walsh, Democrat, Carved it From Anthracite Coal in Memory of Wilkesbarre Speech.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 19.—President Roosevelt has acknowledged the gift of a smoking set, carved from anthracite coal, in memory of his visit to this city last week, and his address to the mine workers.

The set was carved by Thomas Walsh, of Exeter, who, though a Democrat, was so impressed with President Roosevelt's attitude toward the mine workers that he resolved to carve the set and send it to the President.

The latter, in his letter of thanks, received this morning, says he will value the set because Walsh carved it himself from the coal.

A PROUD GEORGIAN.

"Georgians are the most self-satisfied people on earth," Col. Bill Stettin said. "There is nothing in the world that they don't think they have better than anybody else. When I was in Galveston last summer there was one Georgian in a party. He had been bragging about the things his State produced. 'But you don't have sea serpents in Georgia,' spoke up a lady in the party. 'Madam, I live in the interior of Georgia,' said the Georgian, 'but I am reliably informed there are right smart sea serpents down on the Chattahoochee.'—New York World.

CLAIM THEY KNOW CURE FOR LEPROSY

Manila Physicians Depend on X-Ray.

OTHER DOCTORS DOUBTFUL

It Is Pointed Out That Too Many Reputed Leprosy Cures Have Failed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Physicians of this city are inclined to look askance at the news from Manila, published in a cable dispatch, in which it was stated that American surgeons stationed in the Philippines are convinced they have found a cure for leprosy in the x-ray.

No names were mentioned in the statement from Manila, the surgeons refusing to permit the use of their names until they have duly reported their findings through the regular official channels.

It is asserted by the Manila officials that the x-ray treatment has proved successful in twenty-five cases, and the fact of a cure is based on the absence of bacilli in the patients after the most thorough microscopic examination.

Doctor Doubts It.

When Dr. Wolfred Nelson, who was recently investigating yellow fever in Cuba, was seen at the Astor House, he read the Manila assertions and said that while he was ready to politely receive a new form of treatment for leprosy he would be inclined to doubt the efficacy of the cure unless absolute proof were furnished.

"The fact that the surgeons at Manila could not detect bacilli in the blood of their patients does not prove that the bacillus was absent," he said.

"It has been well established that there are many bacilli not susceptible to discovery by microscopic examination. They may be there just the same."

Many Cures Claimed.

Dr. A. C. Ashmead, of 456 West Twenty-fourth street, said:

"It is something on which an opinion cannot be formed at present. We have had all kinds of cures for leprosy set up by doctors all over the world, but not one cure has yet been proved."

"No leper can be said to be cured until it can be shown that he has had no sign of the disease for five or six years. No cure has yet been produced that I know of that has had that result. The treatment by the Roentgen ray has been tried in Europe, and I presume that this is the same treatment being tried in the Philippines."

Dr. Walter Wyman, surgeon general of the army, is in Hawaii investigating leprosy, and will visit the island of Molokai. Before his return he was investigating a cure of a Dr. Rice, and also what is known as the Razlag cure.
